About Franklin College

Founded in 1834, Franklin College is a residential four-year undergraduate liberal arts institution located just 20 minutes from downtown Indianapolis in Franklin, IN. The College prepares men and women for significant careers through the liberal arts, offering more than 1,000 students 50 major tracks including the sciences, business, social sciences, fine arts, humanities, education, and journalism. The College was the first institution of higher education in Indiana to admit women and maintains a voluntary association with the American Baptist Churches, USA.

The mission: Franklin College shall attain excellence as a personal, participatory, values-focused, career-sensitive, liberal arts teaching and learning undergraduate community. The College shall motivate and prepare its graduates for productive and satisfying lives of excellence, leadership and service.

About CDPI

Institute

June 15-18, 2010
Franklin College
Franklin, Indiana

The Program

The CDPI Summer Institute is an immersion into the nuts and bolts of the career services profession. Because of the in-depth nature of the experience, registration will be limited. Preference will be given to active CDPI members.

During this intense training opportunity, participants will interact with some leading professionals in the career development field and with fellow participants through case studies and role plays. Participants will test their skills, engage in active problem-solving, and develop concrete applications for their work.

Participants will also leave the Institute with new knowledge, tools, and a better understanding of the career development profession.

Because of the relatively small number of Institute participants, past attendees have made lasting friendships and developed a support system of professional colleagues from across the country. Most of all, those participating leave the Institute with new insights on how to make a difference at their individual institutions.
